dise firm of Robinson & Skinner, of Marcellus, has dissolved partnership.

Chautauque.

The Chautauque, which was advertised to begin here Tuesday did not begin until Thursday. There was a misunderstanding about the engagement, but it will not effect the attendance as the program will be carried out just the same, except it will be two days late.

Gay.

James Gay died of heart disease at his home on Wednesday, July 28th, near Hiattsville. The burial took place in the Lancaster cemetery Thursday. The deceased is survived by a wife and three grown sons.

Examinations.

The examinations for white teachers will be held in the office of the County Superintendent August 20th, and 21st, and for colored teachers August 27th and 28th. The examinations for appointments to the State Normal will be held on August 20th, and 21st. All applicants for certificates in the July examinations passed and made creditable grades on their certificates. County Superintendent.

Made Good.

We clip the following from the Pecos, Texas, Times:

"J. B. Jennings, manager of the Dry Goods department of the Peccas Mercantile Co., left for the Eastern and Northern markets Saturday. He will be gone one month during which time he will visit with his mother in Lancaster, Ky."

Every body in the community was glad to see "Brad" again and hope he will be able to stay longer on his return trip from New York. To be manager in a company like the Peccas Merantile Co. is certainly a compliment worth noting, and his many friends wish him more success.

Frank Arnold Colored.

On last Saturday Frank Arnold, one of the most highly respected colored men in the county, died suddenly at his home near Hyattsville. The funeral took place Monday, and the burial followed in Lancaster colored cemtery.

Quite a sad coincidence occurred after the death, for when Dr. Johnson was sent to the telegraph office with a message from Uncle Frank's family to his life long friend in Cincinnati, telling him of this sudden death, the telegraph operator was just taking a message from the wires, to Arnolds family, announcing the sudden death of this friend in Cincinnati.

The county would be blessed if all the colored population were as good as "Uncle Frank."

A GREAT SUCCESS.

The Garrard County Fair Attended By Large Crowds. Splendid Show Of Stock. Superb Music.

The reputation of Garrard county for holding a successful stock fair was more than sustained last week, and the event will be long remembered by the great crowds of people who attended. On the first day, the attendance was rather small, but this is always the case at county fairs. Wednesday, however, brought to the grounds the largest number of people ever seen on the local grounds, the attendance being estimated at from 4,000 to 4,500.

It has been truthfully said that a fair at Lancaster will break the most severe drouth, and, notwithstanding the fact that we have been having rains all summer, the flood gates were opened early Friday morning, and a regular "frog-strangler" fell all the forenoon. This served to dwindle the attendance, but, after due consideration the management decided to proceed with the exhibition. The show of stock was far superior to that of previous meetings, stock from many distant points contesting. Persons who know what they are talking about tell this Record that a better class of animals was never before shown in this section of the State, especially in the mule classes. Every ring was well filled, and the judges were put to their wits' end to decide where the ribbons should be placed. A pleasing feature of the show was the fact that there was no objection raised to any of the decisions, all exhibitors and even spectators being satisfied. With such an array of fine animals contest-ing, it is generally impossible to please everybody, and we make this note of satisfaction to prove the fact that the one judge idea is a success.

The amusement features were clean and good, there being absolutely nothing objectionable in the lot. The fakir and skin-game men were conspicuous by their absence, and THE RECORD desires to add its thanks to those of the public for the good judgment of the officers in prohibiting this great nuisance. Another feature to be praised is the foresight of the officers in supplying sufficient teams to get the crowds to and from the grounds. Heretofore much inconvenience has been caused by lack of transportation facilities, but this year there were plenty of good wagons and teams at hand. Our people are likewise very grateful to the L. & N. officials for running the special trains. These brought many people here who could not have come otherwise, and the kindness of the railroad people will never be forgotten.

The music at the Lancaster fairs has always been made a special feature and the officers have always tried to get the very best band to be obtained.
Some of the best-known bands in Cincinnati have played here in recent years, and have always given satisfaction, but this year they secured the celebrated Michaels' band, of Covington, and the people were simply carried away by the elegant class of music furnished. The program published was carried out to the letter, and Prof.
Michaels was very generous in responding to the great applause of each number, playing popular airs as encores.
It is only this year that Michael has played at the country fairs, his men being engaged with work in the larger cities. He has decided, however, to make the fairs a special feature of his work next year, and is already booking engagements for the circuit in Kentucky. He has at his command an unlimited number of the best musicians in Cincinnati and Covington, and is prepared to furnish an instrumentation capable of handling the heaviest of classical music. Everyone here said they had never heard better music than that of last week, and, without boasting, we will say that there are people in this section who know what good music is, if you please.
It is not generally known by the public, but playing in a brass band is hard work, and when a man has done this all day, he is just about worn out at night, but Michaels and his men were always ready and glad to play, and kept the crowd happy all the time.
His dance orchestra is playing this summer at Estill Springs, and those who have had the pleasure of visiting this famous resort say they have never heard better music.

There were visitors from all over the State, and many from distant cities, and all went home singing praises of the hospitality of our people.

NOTES

President, J. Y. Robinson, with his excellent judgement was ready at all times to hand out opinions, which when followed were sure to lead to success.

Secretary Elkin again proved the fact that he is every inch (and that's no small number) a secretary among secretaries. He, with the able assistance of Geo. Harris and "Skinny" Gulley, had every detail correct and there was not the slightest hitch in the work from start to finish.

The dinner was served by the association this year, and certainly was a fine one. The old ham, fried chicken and many other substantial were greatly enjoyed. Under the able supervision of Messrs. J. A. Beazley and Joe S.
Haselden, the crowds were well cared for and all served promptly and satisfactorily. The association will lose money on the dinners, of course, but the officers were determined to give the people a good dinner, and were loudly praised for their progressiveness.

The one judge system proved most satisfactory, and if we can always have as good ones as T. M. Wilson, of Cave City, John Dolan, of Lexington, Henry Caywood, of North Middletown, and L. W. Hudson, of Atlanta, Ga., we will always use it, because they gave entire satisfaction.

Genial Mat Cohen was on hand with a nice string. As we heard a fellow say, "If there's anything at all in a horse, Mat Cohen will get it out." He captured many blue strings.

Bud James, who has been in fair rings since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, was on hand and captured first money in many rings.

Good natured Bob Walker, with his smile that won't come off, was there with a bunch of good ones. Win or lose, Bob smiles, and retains that good humor which has won for him so many friends.

Another popular horseman in the ring was Mack Hughes, of Danville.
Mack knows how to show 'em to the best advantage.

"Billy" Burton's horses made nice shows, and all his friends were sorry that the accident occurred which prevented "Pharaoh" from winning the big roadster ring. He certainly has a good one in his three year old.

Walter Walker's horse attracted much attention, and after the show he refused $300. for him.

"Edna May" together with other horses belonging to Mrs. Lowmes, of Danville, wore many blue ties from the ring.

John Smiley and Clarence Harris, of Lexington, and E. T. Doty, of Madison had many entries and got their share of the large prizes offered.

The mules shown here would not be outclassed in any show in the state, the rings were full and all were good ones but according to the judge's decisions, which were satisfactory to all, Harris & Woods and Baughman, of Lincoln, and Mr. Craddock, of Nolin, Ky., had the best ones.

Much sympathy was expressed to Prof. Thompson, the aeronaut, when through the carelessness of some of his employees, his immense balloon caught on fire as it left the ground on the first afternoon, burning about 200 yards of the canvas. Prof. Thompson proved to be as good as his word however, and after working day and night with two machines, he succeeded in getting it in shape for an ascension Friday. Knowing that we had advertised it so well and that people had come many miles to see it, he tried his best Friday afternoon and 2500 persons witnessed the most perfect ascension ever made in this part of Kentucky.

The dance, given by the young men at Armory Hall Friday evening, was a most enjoyable affair in every respect.
Society was on hand in full force, many visitors from neighboring towns being present. Michaels' superb orchestra furnished inspiring music, and the light fantastic was tripped until the wee small hours. The boys were untiring in their efforts to entertain the visitors, and the event will linger long in the memory of those who attended.

THOUGHTS.

Suggested By The Death Of Mrs.
Elizabeth Leavell Doty.

Death, the reaper is gathering in the sheaves at this harvest season, and nothing that is human is spared by his sweeping scythe. A wife and mother has now fallen, to rise again in that perfect day where there is no night, and where there are no tears and no lamentings. The death of a good wife is like cutting down the oak that has shaded the home from the glare of the world's cares and vicissitudes. She makes the trials of life rest easily, and infuses sweetness into both cloud and sunshine. She is to her chosen companion his best friend, in adversity; the careful preserver of his comfort; the kindest attendant in sickness; a faithful adviser in distress; a solace in affliction. And when her devoted head lies low, the tender memories that cluster about her are as a benediction to him who mourns.

Who can estimate the loss of a mother? She has laid her burdens down, but her lessons shall linger in the hearts of her children. She has watched over them with untiring devotion, enduring their waywardness, forgiving their failings, enjoying their pleasures. She has given them wise council, and offered up for them her earnest prayers, till as they have gone forth to battle with the temptations of life, they must surely have felt that a true mother's heart is the best and noblest of heaven's gifts, that no friendship is so pure, and that no error can be so great as to destroy her won-derous love. It never changes; never grows weary. How true the thought that there is no velvet so soft as a mother's lap; no rose so lovely as her smile; no path so flowery as the one her footsteps have trodden.

Few of us have reached the meridian of life without a loss like this.
But the departed one has left us the fondest recollections, and the hope of an eternal reunion among the ran-somd ones of earth. And so, as we sit alone, and gaze up to the starry heaven, we can in imagination, catch a glimpse of the angels around the great white throne; and among the brightest and fairest of them all is our sweet mother, ever beckoning us onward and upward to her celestial home.

$3,000 Exhibit.

Among the best attractions at the fair was the enormous exhibit of Haselden Bros, wholesale and retail hardware merchants, of our city, who report a large business during the fair.

The exhibit was under the supervision of the following men who represented the article following their names, and who wore white hats and ribbons to distinguish them, while out of the spacious tent, which covered 1800 square feet.

Danville Fair.

We had the pleasure Tuesday of using the ticket, given us by Capt. I. M.
Dunn, to the Danville Fair. There has always been a complaint about the first days attendance at county fairs, but these folks had no room to kick, for they had an extra crowd for the first day, and a handsome show of stock.

The races were pulled off with success, the best time of Tuesday's Trotting race being 2:17 for the first heat which was made by Cecil's horse, St.
Peter.
